EMBRACE THIS MONTH'S STRANGE STORIES.

MAY 2016 ✦ PROUDLY PUBLISHED SINCE 2003 ✦ ISSUE 148

SKYSCRAPER SELFIE

In an attempt to capture the ultimate self-portrait, three daredevils recently scaled a skyscraper in China to take their shot. Russian and Ukrainian photographers Vitaliy Raskalov, 21, and Vadim Makhorov, 25, were joined by Ivan Beerkus as they rode the elevator to the highest floor of the Shun Hing Square tower in Shenzhen. In a breathtaking video, the "On The Roofs" group appear 384 metres above the ground where it is believed they busted through a suspected locked door to take their sky-high selfie. The Shun Hing Square tower is the 28th tallest building in the world. It is unknown if the trio sought permission to climb the skyscraper. The adventure was not a new one for the group who have previously scaled the world's second tallest building, the Shanghai Tower at over 630 metres tall and the Moscow Bridge in Kiev, Ukraine which stands at 118 metres tall.

CREASE PROOF CLOTHES

Ironing your clothes may become a chore of the past after scientists revealed a robot that can flawlessly iron for you. Using sensors and a 'wrinkle analysis algorithm', the robot is able to ensure that clothing items are perfectly pressed without any creases. Researchers were so impressed with their creation and reported, "Experimental results show that using our wrinkle analysis algorithm, our robot is able to iron the cloth surface and effectively remove the wrinkles." For the purpose of the research, scientists referred to the robots as 'dynamic ironing' when the robot was moving, opposed to 'static ironing' when it remained still. The team also referred to the wrinkles in the clothes as 'height bumps' in a video hosted on YouTube. Further experiments are to be implemented and will focus on the amount of force the robot can use to encourage even better results.

BOGUS BOTTLED AIR

An English entrepreneur has released the unusual luxury product of air bottled in a country setting to be exported to high-pollution cities in China. The company, Aethaer, has sold at least 180 jars of west Britain's finest oxygen at around $122 each to customers in Asia. Founder, Leo De Watts, explains the venture as, "being the equivalent of Louis Vuitton or Gucci" if those brands sold air. There has been some scepticism around the product with professor and director of the Center for Clean Air at the University of California, Los Angeles, Suzanne Paulson stating, "There are many reasons why it makes no sense at all." Paulson explained that each Aethaer unit contains just 588 millilitres of air which represents an insignificant amount compared to the seven to eight litres of air that a average human breathes every minute and claimed that once opened the contents would quickly mix with the surrounding air.

TUMBLEWEED TAKES OVER

A small community in Victoria was inundated recently by giant two-metre high tumbleweeds. The weeds, known as hairy panic grass, caused havoc by blanketing homes, cars and driveways. Local, Jason Perna, reported the tumbleweed as measuring "two metres high by three metres in diameter that spreads right across the front of the house." Perna believes the grass may have blown into the area from a nearby farm that had been neglected by its owner and added, "A couple of years ago they planted a crop of hay in there. They didn't plant anything last year and it's just derived from the grass that's died." The local council held an emergency meeting about the ongoing problem with the consideration of sending out street sweepers and liaising with the Country Fire Authority to help clean up the mess. Perna further suggested the locals in the area take advantage of the tumbleweed to produce scarecrows to sell.

RARE ALBINO TURTLE

A rare albino green turtle has recently been discovered on Sunshine Coast's Castaways Beach leaving onlookers stunned. Measuring about five centimetres long, the tiny baby turtle was found by the environmental volunteer group, Coolum and North Shore Coast Care. President of the group, Linda Warneminde, described the encounter as, "like a normal turtle hatchling, except that it had a white shell and it had little white flippers, and you could see a little bit of pink under its flippers...None of us had ever experienced or seen anything like that before, so we were all a little bit taken aback." According to the Queensland's Government's Threatened Species Unit chief scientist, Dr Col Limpus, albino hatchlings are "extremely rare; it probably occurs at the rate of one in many hundreds of thousands of eggs that are laid."

TEARS OF STONE

A woman in China has baffled doctors by mysteriously producing stone tears for several years. Ding Aihua has turned to the media for help after declaring doctors will not take her condition seriously. Aihua's husband, Liang Xinchun, was shocked to discover a hard, silvery-white stone under his wife's eyelid seven years ago and confirmed she has been producing them ever since. Liang, a farmer in Lufang village in Heze city in East China's Shandong Province, claimed that every time the couple visit the hospital for treatment, staff believe them to be crazy with Xinchun saying, "They treat us as if we are mental cases...It is incredibly painful this problem with her eyes." Over the years, Aihua has collected at least 10 small stones from her eye socket, which are reportedly quite difficult to remove. The bizarre phenomenon has now gone viral since journalists have been informed.

MYSTERY SPACE MUSIC

When three NASA astronauts travelled to the far side of the Moon in 1969, they heard strange "music". Now, the recording has been made public for the first time and reportedly features peculiar whistling noises. At the time, Thomas Stafford, John Young and Eugene Cernan were aboard Apollo 10 and were reluctant to tell NASA bosses in fear they wouldn't be taken seriously. One NASA engineer suggested radio interference was potentially to blame for the "outer-space-type music", however, not all astronauts are convinced. Astronaut from Apollo 15, Al Worden, said, "Logic tells me that if there was something recorded on there, then there's something there." Astronaut, Michael Collins, who flew Apollo 11 solo around the far side of the Moon, further supports the mystery Moon music and also heard an "eerie woo-woo sound", but, was warned prior to his mission. The far side of the Moon is out of the range of Earthly radio signal with the audio being released for a Discovery TV series called NASA's Unexpected Files.

DOUBLE-HEADED SNAKE

A snake breeder in Wodonga, Victoria, was surprised to discover two reptilian heads poking out of an egg which were connected to the same body. John McNamara was excited to uncover what he thought was a normal coastal carpet python to in fact be a two-headed reptile and explained, "There would have been two yolks and they just haven't split properly... and I ended up with this... I've got a lot of mates that breed reptiles, and have rung around and it's pretty rare in the trade. To be alive still is even rarer." University of Melbourne School of Bio-Sciences senior lecturer, Ben Phillips, said the snake could potentially live in captivity for many years depending on how it is integrated inside and said, "They no doubt require extra care... There is something fascinating about any animal that has two heads because there is a sense of them being separate entities and the same."

BAD BELCHING BEHAVIOUR

A man from Vienna was recently fined over $100 after he offended "public decency" by burping loudly within earshot of a police officer. After feasting on a kebab in the city's Prater park, Edin Mehic, let it rip with a loud belch. According to the ticket, posted on the offenders Facebook page, Mehic was accused of offending "public decency with a loud belch next to a police officer". It was during a Sunday stroll when Mehic burped and "felt a hand on his shoulder" from the unimpressed policeman who issued the ticket shortly after. The offence was later confirmed by police spokesman, Roman Hahslinger. Since the incident more than 100 people have rallied in a quest for justice for Mehic and committed to participate in a flash mob near the scene of the crime. The offending burper also plans to appeal against the fine. Regardless of the tough stance on belching, the Austrian capital was recently listed as the best city in the world to live in.

POOCHES IN PLANES

In a new reality television series, the United Kingdom will attempt to train twelve abandoned dogs to fly a aeroplane. Chosen by experts from 120,000 animal rescue shelters across the United Kingdom, the dozen canines were transported to a Sussex mansion to undergo exercises designed to prepare them for the challenge. Scientists investigated the dog's communication, empathy, memory and reasoning skills during a 10-week training period with the six-episode series expected to follow their journey. There are dog trainers, behavioural specialists and vets involved in the show including a clinical animal behaviourist, who represents an expert in dog-related court cases, and a police dog trainer. A selected few of the canines will be sent to flight school in the hope to be trained in flying a single-engine aircraft. Presenter, Jamie Theakston, said, "Even if a dog has been deprived of human contact or has been badly treated, it is just as able and motivated to initiate a new relationship with a human very quickly." Each dog is to be given a new home at the end of the series.

PO

STATUS:

Once a noodle maker, Po Ping is a loveable and clumsy panda. Po was plucked from working at his dad's shop to fulfil the ancient prophecy of Dragon Warrior under the guidance of Master Shifu and kung fu fighting experts, the Furious Five.

STYLE:

Standing just over six-feet-tall and weighing around 118 kilograms, Po represents a portly black and white panda. He has green eyes and usually wears casual brown shorts and shoes.

PERSONALITY:

Po is a big panda with a big personality who is also humble, loyal, easygoing and passionate about maintaining peace.

FRIENDS:

Master Shifu offers Po guidance in his quests against evil. Po also has support from other skilled warriors, the Furious Five – Tigress, Monkey, Viper, Mantis and Crane.

SKILLS:

A somewhat surprising hero, Po uses a unique kung fu fighting style that takes advantage of his roundest features, being his stomach and backside.

FINAL STATS

Status: The status stakes go to

Po and his transformation from noodle maker to Dragon Warrior.

Style: Captain America's costume is quite impressive and we do love a shield.

Personality: We have to side with Po's hilarious and humble nature.

Friends: Po and Captain America both have great support from other superheroes so it's a tie.

Skills: Peak physical condition along with intelligence makes Captain America the winner here.

wrestle match - every month!
our predictions then YOU decide.

CAPTAIN AMERICA

STATUS:

After being injured in World War II, Steve Rogers is frozen in time and enhanced to the peak of human physicality by an experimental serum. Rogers awakes in present day as Captain America.

STYLE:

Captain America wears a sophisticated uniform that represents the American flag colours of blue, red and white complete with a mask and shield.

PERSONALITY:

In the modern world, Steve Rogers, at times struggles to embrace his identity, but, represents a patriotic and passionate soldier who strives to find justice in a corrupt world.

FRIENDS:

With the division of superhero group, The Avengers, in the film, Captain America: Civil War, Captain America leans on allies including the Winter Soldier, Hawkeye and Falcon.

SKILLS:

Following his rehabilitation, Captain America possesses peak physical condition in strength, endurance, agility, speed and healing. He is also a skilled martial artist, tactician and wields a powerful shield when in combat.

THE THRONE DRONE

Your own personal helicopter – and it's all automatic!

ENGINES!

Unless you've been hiding under a rock, you would have noticed there a lot more drones buzzing around these days. Anything from regular drones, miniature drones, drones with infrared cameras, drones that follow you everywhere - and drones that you can fly with virtual reality goggles! Well, you can toss all those aside, because Chinese company EHang has just gone and built the craziest (and coolest) drone yet. Named the EHang 184, it's a 230 kg all-electric quadcopter the size of a Smart Car. And yes it has a seat - for a person to sit in! But what makes it different from a helicopter? Well, helicopters need a trained pilot to fly them. The EHang 184's cockpit has no flight controls whatsoever! Instead, a passenger (you) would hop on in, enter the destination, plug the destination into Google Maps, and off you go - all while enjoying the air conditioning and Wi-Fi inside!

This totally automatic aerial machine has four arms that hold two propellers each. These help to transport a 100 kg person at up to 100 km/h - for 23 minutes on a single charge! Because it's entirely electric, there's no need for petrol or oil. It has one button for both taking-off and landing as well as a hover button; which comes in handy because in an emergency, passengers can pause flight and just hover in the air with just one click! It does however also use a failsafe system so that if there is any sign of major malfunction or fail, the aircraft will immediately land in the nearest possible area for maximum safety. EHang say they will launch first in China, along with the US, Australia, and then Europe. The price tag will be between $200,000 and $300,000 - which is actually a bargain if you've ever been stuck in peak hour traffic lately!

New Day

One third of The New Day, along with Kofi Kingston (right) and Xavier Woods (left), Big E (centre) says the trio are “killing it on a weekly basis”.

KRASH: Who would be your ideal opponents at WrestleMania 32 (on April 3 in Texas)?

Big E: We're pretty excited about the crop of NXT tag teams right now. There are a lot of teams that can bring something different to the table. Enzo and Cass bring a new dimension and can both kill it on the microphone — and Jordan and Gable are fantastic technical wrestlers.

KRASH: Do you think you have an advantage because there are three of you? (The New Day use the Freebird Rule, which allows any two of their three members to defend the tag titles on any given night)

Big E: We definitely have an

Dawning

advantage with three of us. The bigger advantage though — even beyond us having the numbers — is we've been together now for almost two years. We spent several months working on stuff at live events together. I really believed in our chemistry and always thought that's what would make this work more than anything. It's something you're not going to see with any other tag team. There aren't any teams that have the bond we have.

KRASH: You've had a long-running feud with The Usos — is it possible you'll face them again at WrestleMania 32?

Big E: I think the Usos are fantastic foils for us and I really have a lot of respect for what they do. It's really hard to say where things will align themselves for WrestleMania season, but they're definitely a team worthy of another shot.

KRASH: One of your most impressive moves is your spear through the second and top ropes — where did that move come from?

Big E: It's something that Fit Finlay suggested. He works backstage with us here in WWE, so I've got to give him credit. He was the one who suggested a running spear to the corner, which a lot of guys do, and maybe doing it through the ropes. I gave it a shot and it ended up being something that was cool and different. I move pretty well for a guy of my size, so doing something that emphasises my movement and speed, is something that I try to do. A couple of times I've landed on my ribs, which is unpleasant and can be sore for a couple of weeks, but you know, what we do isn't ballet, as Jim Ross liked to say.

KRASH: What do you think it is about you, Kofi and Xavier that works so well together?

Big E: I feel like Woods is so entertaining with the stuff he does with the trombone and the stuff he does on the floor as well, but I feel like we all bring entertainment and are all pretty good in the ring as well. They are two guys who are like brothers to me. The basic ingredient for our success is no longer worrying about what other people think. If we find things funny, we'll do them. We feel like we're out there to entertain ourselves. If the people are entertained, that's on them.

KRASH: Did you ever think you would be in the ring with the likes of Brock Lesnar and The Rock, and holding down such a key position on the roster?

Big E: I guess in a way we felt when this first started that we could do something big. But I don't look back at those moments like 'gee, golly I'm glad it happened... we always want more and we're always looking to climb up the ladder.

#ANGRYBIRDSMOVIE

THE ANGRY BIRDS MOVIE

IN THE 3D ANIMATED COMEDY, THE ANGRY BIRDS MOVIE, WE'LL FINALLY FIND OUT WHY THE BIRDS ARE SO ANGRY.

THE ANGRY BIRDS MOVIE TAKES US TO AN ISLAND POPULATED ENTIRELY BY HAPPY, FLIGHTLESS BIRDS – OR ALMOST ENTIRELY. IN THIS PARADISE, RED, A BIRD WITH A TEMPER PROBLEM, SPEEDY CHUCK, AND THE VOLATILE BOMB HAVE ALWAYS BEEN OUTSIDERS. BUT WHEN THE ISLAND IS VISITED BY MYSTERIOUS GREEN PIGGIES, IT'S UP TO THESE UNLIKELY OUTCASTS TO FIGURE OUT WHAT THE PIGS ARE UP TO.

RED*ANGRIEST OF THEM ALL

VOICED BY:
JASON SUDEIKIS

Red lives on Bird Island, a world populated with the most naively happy characters imaginable – so, needless to say, Red doesn't fit in. The other birds' cheery, carefree lives are in stark contrast to Red's own: he has few friends, can't hold down a job thanks to his uncontrollable temper and lives alone on the outskirts of town. On top of this, he's missing the basic social skills needed to fully connect with others. Aware that he is different from everyone else, he tries to mask his discomfort with a sarcastic and aloof attitude, which only serves to estrange him further. What he really wants, but doesn't know yet, is a sense of acceptance. Red isn't afraid to ask the difficult questions, pushing where others are reluctant to push.

CHUCK*FAST AND FOOLHARDY

VOICED BY:
JOSH GAD

Everything about Chuck is speedy. He thinks fast, talks fast and moves even faster. He zips around the island in a flash. Chuck speaks with a high-pitched voice that lacks a filtering mechanism – so you never know just what will come out. His frenetic energy has him jumping from one thought to the next without waiting for anyone else to catch up. Chuck is impulsive and mercurial, and intent on having friends.

BOMB*KA-BOOM

VOICED BY:
DANNY MCBRIDE

Bomb is a bit of a dim bulb with a big heart. He's the only bird on the island diagnosed with IED (Intermittent Explosive Disorder), which causes him to literally explode when surprised or stressed. He's determined to gain control of his IED, but still has a long way to go! Because of his unpredictable and explosive power, Bomb is a much more cautious bird than the others, with a slow and ponderous way of speaking.

MATILDA

HIPPIE OF THE FLOCK

VOICED BY:
DANNY MCBRIDE

Matilda is the calm, Zen leader of the Infinity Acceptance Group: the anger management class on Bird Island. She is a former angry bird herself, but has since learned the error of her ways and now overcompensates with a serene, hippy-dippy demeanour. But we get the sense that Matilda's anger is still bottled up deep down inside of her and can (and will) potentially break out in moments of extreme stress or frustration. Even though her new students, Red, Chuck and Bomb, test her patience, she tries to lead them toward serenity, whether they want it or not.

THE PIGS

A CHEERY BUNCH

The Pigs are lowly subjects wallowing at the bottom of the pig pile. Despite their miserable conditions, Pigs are surprisingly cheerful and more than ready to obey orders. Perhaps being totally clueless is their key to happiness. The Pigs aren't particularly brave creatures on their own, but together they dare to go basically anywhere.

VOICED BY:
BILL MADER

LEONARD

MASTER OF CEREMONIES

Leonard is the charming and charismatic spokesman for all of the pigs. A combination of an international ambassador and a traveling salesman, Leonard immediately wins over the birds with his folksy, warm personality. He speaks with sincerity and enthusiasm as he gives those naïve and trusting birds his many gifts from Piggy Island. They are blown away by his showmanship and fully welcome the pigs into their community. However, we begin to detect some cracks beneath Leonard's over-sized, diplomatic grin. Leonard is smarter than he looks, and his friendliness could be a ruse for a deeper, darker plan.

CHECK OUT RED'S ANGER MANAGEMENT TIPS!

EXERCISE:

Physical activity can help relieve the stress that often leads to anger. If your temper is rising, step outside and go for a walk or run. Take time to partake in a sport that you love. Find a slingshot and soar!

RELAXATION SKILLS:

When my temper flares, I put my relaxation skills to work! I practice deep breathing exercises and imagine a peaceful environment, free from pigs. I often write in a journal and do a few yoga poses that I learned from Matilda, my anger management coach.

TAKE A TIME OUT:

Two pigs have just destroyed your house and you are fuming! Remove yourself from the heated situation and calm down. Listen to some soothing music and practice your relaxation skills. Once you have released that pent up emotion, approach the situation with a level head.

DON'T HOLD A GRUDGE:

Forgiveness is powerful! Don't allow negative feelings to engulf you in bitterness and regret. If you can learn to forgive someone who has angered you, you both may learn a valuable lesson. Let it go!

ANGRY FACTS!

- The locations of Bird Island and Piggy Island are a mystery. They can be almost anywhere on the globe.
- Since the islands are in middle of mysterious seas, a lot of stuff gets washed ashore from wrecked ships and planes.
- They are both large islands, and the natural landscape features all sorts of climatic zones, from deserts and coniferous forests to rainforests and mountains with glaciers.
- Each climatic zone has its own animals, which have adapted to the climate. Other bird or pig species from the real animal world are not found on the islands.
- The birds of Bird Island are incapable of flying, unless otherwise mentioned.
- The birds usually eat fruits, plants, and worms, but they enjoy all kinds of sweets, too. They have typical birdlike ways of enjoying their food; it's not unusual to see adults serving their barf milkshakes to their hatchlings.
- The birds are excellent nest-builders, but they aren't as interested in construction as the pigs are.

WHAT'S EVERYBODY TALKING ABOUT?

The focus is on racing games this month, but we also have some big adventures to enjoy and a stack of great news about Nintendo.

Disney Infinity

There will be no new Disney Infinity game this year, but instead there will be a bunch of new playsets and characters for Disney Infinity 3.0. The latest additions include Judy Hopps and Nick Wilde (Zootopia) and Baloo (The Jungle Book), as well as the Marvel Battlegrounds playset, with characters like Captain America – The First Avenger, Hulkbuster, Ultron, Black Panther, Ant-Man and Vision.

Destiny 2 has been announced, but it will not be coming out until 2017. Later in 2016, however, we will get a big expansion to the first Destiny.

Activision will not have a booth at E3 this year, following EA by pulling out of the famous event. We guess that means we will not be seeing a new Skylanders, Tony Hawk or Guitar Hero.

The guy that invented the Fable series is releasing a battle game for PC called Godus Wars; it's a spin-off from his simulation game Godus.

Sony is working on a PlayStation VR motion-tracking glove.

A bunch of books based on the Angry Birds and Bad Piggies series are in the works.

Nintendo has revealed that its second mobile game will star one of its major characters and series, but isn't telling us which one.

Art has emerged online to suggest that PS4 launch game Knack could be getting a sequel.

Portal Knights is a just announced, awesome looking sandbox RPG inspired by Minecraft.

World of Warcraft creator Blizzard has dropped a hint that it is working on a real-time strategy game for mobiles and tablets.

The HTC Vive virtual reality headset is coming out this April and will cost US$899 in the USA, which is about $1250 here – ouch!

Hardware experts are saying that mobile and tablet graphics could be the same quality as Xbox One and PS4 as early as next year.

Classic RPG Dragon Quest VII: Fragments of the Forgotten Past is being remade and will hit the 3DS later this year.

HANDY STUFF

Every month we take you through the newest and coolest games to get through the eShop? They are usually quite cheap, and there is

SHOVEL KNIGHT

Perhaps the most famous game to hit the eShop, this old school platformer involves a knight with a shovel that he can use to whack enemies and jump higher (you bounce on it like a pogo stick). You can also use it to dig up treasure. Your quest to save your friends and defeat a bunch of fallen knights is great thanks to the easy controls and great levels. However, be warned; it's not easy.

PUSHMO

If you like puzzle-orientated experiences such as Captain Toad: Treasure Tracker, you will fall in love with this cute little game. You need to push blocks around to open up a path to the top of a stage so you can rescue little Pushmo. There are alternate ways of solving each level, and once you have completed the main game, there is editor so you can build your own stages!

STEAMWORLD DIG

This simple, but addictive game has you play as a robot in the Wild West out to get his fortune. You dig down into the earth looking for cool treasures, which you can use to make money that can be spent on new equipment to help you dig even further. There are abilities to earn, cool equipment like drills to collect and even some puzzles to solve.

ART OF BALANCE TOUCH!

This physics based puzzle game is all about balancing objects on top of each other. Sounds simple, right? Well the higher you go, the more you will have to move and play with each object in the puzzle (of which there are 200) to get them to stay up without tumbling down. A basic idea, but the great controls and realistic physics make it feel really fun.

8 3DS eShop Games You Should Not Miss hit store shelves, but what about the downloadable titles you can plenty to choose from • here are some gems you should not miss!

SIESTA FIESTA

This innovative game takes a classic old-school genre - where you control a paddle at the bottom of the screen and need to bounce a ball off it to break apart objects - with a platformer. It works really well, as the stage keeps changing as you move sideways through the world, throwing stacks of obstacles and power-ups at you, while giving you different combos to change how the ball bounces.

GUNMAN CLIVE

Yet another Wild West themed game, this is a 2D shooter where you make your way through inventive levels, blasting away at enemies. The more enemies you take out, the better upgrades you can earn for your weapon. There's plenty of variety, especially with the bosses, and you can't just blast away as there's strategy involved in how and when you fire your bullets.

MIGHTY SWITCH FORCE

This fast-paced action platformer has you fighting your way through futuristic landscape trying to hunt down escaped prisoners. The focus is on the shooting, but the levels stand out from other titles like this by including plenty of puzzles that really make you think about how you are going to get to the end. The retro-themed visuals and music are plenty of fun, too.

FLUIDITY: SPIN CYCLE

This motion-based puzzle game is all about moving a body of water through complex levels. You do this by actually moving your 3DS in the air - so if you turn it sideways, then all the water will flow downwards. So you need to work out how to turn your system to get the water where you need it. There are lots of tricks - jumping, turning to ice, fountains - that add platformer elements, too.

NINTENDO CORNER

There is so much happening in the world of Nintendo right and it's all good!

Paper Mario: Color Splash

(Wii U): Just announced, this brand new entry in the adventure RPG series looks truly awesome. Our hero and his paper-friends head to Prism Island, where all the colour has been drained from the world. As you adventure through, you need to add colour back to the world using your paint hammer, bashing things to cover them in blues, reds, yellows and more. It will be out this year, too!

Nintendo has revealed Pokémon Sun and Moon, the next games in the series for 3DS. Little else is known about the game yet.

All new music minigame collection Rhythm Paradise Megamix will provide 100 different experiences and will be out later this year.

Disney Art Academy (3DS): The Art Academy series does a great job of teaching you how to become a great artist by taking you through lessons and letting you test out your skills on the touchscreen. This version of the game uses over 80 Disney and Pixar characters and animations as starting points, which sounds awesome. Frozen, Inside Out, Mickey Mouse and more are included - out July 16.

The extremely exciting shooter Metroid Prime: Federation Force will hit 3DS this winter.

Mario & Sonic at the Rio 2016 Olympic Games will be out June 25 and has two new events; Rugby Sevens and Rhythmic Gymnastics.

A Super Expert difficult mode is coming to Super Mario Maker's 100 Mario Challenge mode and bunch of new tools to the creation mode.

Kirby: Planet Robobot (3DS):

The world's cutest pink puffball is making a return to handhelds and the cuddly Dream Land has been turned into a hard machine. Luckily our hero gets some cool Robobot Armour that can help him copy and use the invader's technology. Particularly awesome, this game has a four-play co-op mode, where each player has different roles to play. Plus, you level-up and unlock more powerful stuff as you go. Expect four new Amiibo to release with the game - Kirby, King Dedede, Meta Knight and Waddle Dee.

EYE ON THE NINTENDO NX

A couple of major leaks have occurred this month, providing a host of very cool rumours about the next Nintendo console, the NX. Here are the best of them: we hope they're true!

The next big Legend of Zelda game will be cross-platform, and will release on both the Wii U and the NX at the end of 2016. A new Super Smash Bros. game is also expected to be available at launch.

The NX controller will look like a mix of a Samsung phone and the 2DS, and will work a lot like an Android phone.

A lot of focus has been put into improving the multiplayer, social features and StreetPass concept.

It will have a detachable wireless HDMI dongle that can be plugged into a TV for streaming of gameplay without cables. This should allow for easily playing in multiple rooms.

The Nintendo NX will be close to the Xbox One in terms of hardware power and developers will easily be able to bring their games to the NX from XBO and PS4.

It will sync with most Bluetooth devices, including smartphones and tablets. So you will be able to answer phone calls and receive text messages directly through the NX.

There will be small motors in the analogue sticks that will provide haptic feedback as you play; for example, driving a car over rough terrain will be felt in the stick itself.

The Nintendo NX will release in 2016

EA will be a bit supporter of the NX with games like Need for Speed and FIFA.

The NX will work as both a console and a handheld.

There's a rumour the highly anticipated adventure game Beyond Good & Evil 2 could be an NX exclusive. Plus Dragon Quest X and Dragon Quest XI could be coming to the system.

Many NX games will use Augmented Reality.

The Nintendo Network will have an achievement/trophy system like the other consoles and you will be able to share video footage of your gaming with friends.

None of the images on this page are real; they are some artists' ideas of what the console may look like.

HALO

WITHTHE LEGEND OF ZELDA

WE PLAY A LOT OF GAMES HERE AT KRASH, SO SURELY WE COULD CREATE A GOOD ONE OF OUR OWN, RIGHT?

Now here are two popular game series I am sure you know well – after all, they are the two biggest game brands for their companies. First we have the mighty Halo from the Xbox consoles. Starring Master Chief, a legendary super hero space marine who keeps on saving the galaxy from various alien threats, the Halo games are leaders of the first-person shooter genre. They're known for their epic storytelling and brilliant online gameplay. On the other side we have Nintendo's greatest adventure series, The Legend of Zelda. Starring the iconic hero Link and a cast of other famous faces including, of course, the Princess Zelda, this series has constantly pushed the limits of gaming for over 30 years. It's loved for its stunning cartoony visuals, its epic dungeons, fantasy storylines and backpack full of fun gadgets.

Both these games are the best in their respective genres, but what would happen if they teamed-up and merged together?

Imaging playing as Link from a first-person view. Holding the boomerang or sword out in front of you, or the reigns as you rode your horse. But of course, you would have buggies and planes to drive too from the Halo universe. Or what about Master Chief using a grappling hook to swing across a pit of spikes and pushing around objects to solve puzzles? What we think would work best, however, is a first-person shooter like Halo, but with the open world of a Zelda game. Where you need to find dungeons, go in and explore, solve puzzles, defeat enemies and take out a boss to get the loot. You'd have gadgets and guns at your disposal, as well as vehicles to drive. We think this would be the best mix of the two games and provide an adventure-FPS experience that nobody had ever played before. Once you've imagined all that, then think of the multiplayer and trying to defeat those dungeons with friends – oh yeah!!

A COOL IDEA

GAME? WRITE

THE BIG QUESTION

WHAT'S THE NEXT BIG THING IN MULTIPLAYER?

One of the coolest things about video games is that they are always trying to push the limits of what we can do. Think about how many sequels you have played that are worse than the original. It doesn't happen very often, does it? It's because developers can build off what they created last time, and try and add all new even cooler features. In fact, developers that have lots of different series can even swap ideas between games that may be completely different. Like putting a racing section in a platformer.

Over the last ten years, online multiplayer has become a huge part of video gaming and almost every title that comes out lets you play against or with other people online. How many times do you see a game menu that has an entry for Story or Campaign, and one for Multiplayer to choose from? When you choose multiplayer, you usually go into a lobby, then you go through matchmaking, then you wait for a while as it selects a map and loads. Finally you select your loadout and get into the game. It takes a bit of time to get to the fun, right.

Well this game has just come out called The Division and it's pushing the limits of multiplayer – it's for big kids unfortunately as it is quite violent. However, it has a brand new way of playing multiplayer and we think it will be the next big thing in all games. You see you have this large map and it's all for the single player campaign. Except in the middle, there is an area called the Dark Zone, and if you walk into that it suddenly becomes multiplayer. Just like that.

So no exiting and going through the menus. No matchmaking. No choosing a new character that may not have all the stuff you like. You seamlessly just go into multiplayer and can begin fighting other dudes whenever you like. Now that is the future!

5 SERIES WE'D LOVE TO SEE THIS FEATURE IN

1. Splatoon
2. Pokémon
3. Need for Speed
4. Minecraft
5. Skylanders

WHY SO ANGRY?

The background of the poster features a close-up of a yellow Angry Bird with a large orange beak and wide, white eyes. The bird is positioned in the lower-left corner, looking upwards. Behind it, a large, dark, textured mass, possibly a crow or a large bird, looms in the upper-left corner. The overall color palette is dominated by the yellow of the bird, the orange of its beak, and the dark, almost black, background.

OLYMPIC GAMES

DEVELOPER: NINTENDO

FORMAT: 3DS

Every four years, the best athletes across the world gather in one spot to see who is truly the greatest in the world. So it should come as no surprise then that the best video game characters do the same thing, right? Of course! Which is why Mario and Sonic get all the gang together in a game with a stack of different sports to enjoy. It happened back in 2008 for the Beijing Olympics, then for the 2012 Olympics in London, and now for the 2016 Olympics in Rio, Brazil.

Just like the real Olympics, you compete across a variety of sports trying to get a gold, silver or bronze medal. There's a humungous 40 characters for you to select from – 20 more than the last game – made up of stars of either the Sega games, or the various Nintendo titles. This includes Amy, Bowser, Diddy Kong, Dr. Eggman, Donkey Kong, Knuckles, Mario, Peach, Shadow, Sonic, Sticks, Tails, Wario and Yoshi. Not all the characters have the same talents either, with speed, power and skill abilities varying between stars.

But of course it is the sports that we are here for and there are 14 to get stuck into. Each of them uses the control options of the 3DS smartly – for example, when playing golf, you use the stylus on the touchscreen to take your swing. There is such a great mix of sports as well, and we love how they've chosen some really fun ones like BMX, archery and boxing!

But this wouldn't be a Mario game without a bit of silliness, and there also 14 "plus" sports to enjoy. These are based on the main sports, but include classic Mario-style enhancements, with obstacles – such as waves when you are swimming – and power-ups. Like the normal sports, these can all be played in multiplayer. You only need one cartridge between four people as well, so your friends can connect to your game easily. If you don't have anyone nearby to play, you can also try and beat the global leaderboards.

Usually this is where we would stop when talking about a sport game, but Nintendo has really gone all out and jammed in lots of extra content. There is a story to follow, with Team Mario and Team Sonic trying to outdo each other at the big event. On top of that, there is a full practise mode where you can hone your skills, and you can improve a character's abilities by collecting better clothes and equipment. All the Mario and Sonic amiibo figurines – including

Dr. Mario – bring some boosts to characters when tapped into the game, too.

These add even more reasons to get into the Olympic spirit with these two awesome game heroes and their friends. With a stack of great sports to enjoy, lots of play options and an incredibly cast of characters, this game is gold.

WHAT'S HOT

Racing, flying and blasting; we've got everything great about gaming in Krash this month.

DIRT RALLY

If you're a fan of the Dirt series – and you should be, they are all awesome games – you will be used to the stunt-focused, extremely fun off-road racing the series is famous for. With circuit racing, big crashes and legends like Ken Block on hand, they make you feel like an awesome driver. However, this type of experience is not where the series started.

Before it was called Dirt, the series was called Colin McRae's Rally and it was a serious racer. It was about completing all the stages in a rally, going from A to B and minimising your damage. Between stages you could try and tinker with your setup and repair some of the damage, but it was a true game of skill and endurance. Going fast wasn't always the best choice; sometimes you just needed to keep the car safe. Dirt Rally goes back to that style of play. Over 40 cars across multiple classes are available, and depending on what assists you turn on, the driving is challenging and realistic – which we love!

There are six huge rallies to test yourself in, and they go all across the world, including Greece, Wales, Sweden, USA, Finland and Italy. They offer great variation in conditions (such as snow) and surfaces, which really test you out.

There is so much to love about this game. It looks amazing, sounds fantastic and the controls are great. We love how you can hire new mechanics for your pit crew and train them up to improve how much damage they can repair and also how crashing actually changes the way your car drives. There's also official World Rallycross tracks and cars to enjoy and a full multiplayer mode.

If you're a real car fan and really love to test yourself behind the wheel, be brave and tackle this awesome video game.

TRACKMANIA TURBO

If Dirt Rally is about super serious racing, then Trackmania Turbo is the direct opposite. This is a proper arcade game, where you don't have to worry too much about realistic controls and physics. Instead you just focus on getting to the finish line as fast as possible, dodging obstacles and pulling off crazy stunts as you go. And it is awesome fun! There are 200 tracks in the game – yes, 200! – some of which are circuits with laps, and others that are start to finish courses. They are all quite short, though. They're pretend tracks as you may have guessed from the massive jumps, loop-the-loops and crazy embankments, and they unfold across four main locations, Rollercoaster Lagoon, International Stadium, Canyon Grand Drift, and Valley Down & Dirty. You race against other cars and also the clock, trying to beat your fastest times from previous attempts, or those of your friends.

The action is incredibly fast and elements like turbo and drifting just add to your need to react quickly. The controls work well and the sweet graphics keep up with the action, as does the pumping soundtrack. (Although we wish the crashes were more epic.) We especially love how quick it is in getting you back on the track after a race – kind of like the Trials series, you're always in the thick of the action and racing. There are some interesting game modes to explore outside the main campaign. There is a

- two-player co-op mode where you and a friend control the same car at the same time – yes expect some yelling – and there is also four-player splitscreen, which is rad.
- Best of all, however, is the level editor, allowing you to build your own tracks from scratch, or generate random ones to enjoy. This makes the game basically endless as there is always something new to try out.
- What a brilliant game!

RATCHET & CLANK

PS4

We cannot even begin to tell you how excited we are to have this dynamic duo, legends of the platform adventure genre, back in our lives. For over a decade, Ratchet & Clank's space adventures have been entertaining us, with outstanding visuals, great gadgets, interesting stories and super fun combat with very silly weapons. But as you may have guessed from the title of this game, this isn't so much a brand new game as it is a remake of the original 2002 release. Well, it's kind of a remake. It's actually based on the new Ratchet & Clank film that is coming out, but the film is based on the first game in the series – whoa, mind melt! Did that make sense? Well all you really need to know is that it's good fun. And the developer, Insomniac Games, has done a lot more than just make the visuals look a lot more modern. (The game looks truly fantastic, by the way.)

The story allows us to revisit the first meeting between Ratchet and Clank (as well as other series favourites like Captain Quark) and how they became good friends trying to stop an evil dude from making a super-planet by joining up the best chunks of other planets – what a crazy plan! The gameplay, however, takes the best parts of all the games in the series. So you have all the whacky weapons – including the disco grenade, which forces enemies to break out into a dance – as well as great, modern controls. The action unfolds much as it always has, with a full 3D world for you to explore, with a focus on combat, collecting and light puzzle solving. However, if you did manage to play the first game all those years ago, you will notice lots of new areas and gameplay experiences, not to mention new weapons like the Pixelizer (which turns enemies into retro versions of themselves). A must-own game!

GAMESTA HEAT 🔥🔥🔥🔥

GAMESTA VERDICT: WELCOME BACK!

STAR FOX ZERO

The wait is finally over Krash Heads. After a few frustrating delays, the next entry in the legendary Star Fox series is here and it is quite unlike anything we have played before. Like its predecessors, it is still a spaceship fighter where you pilot through passages and around arenas blasting away at enemies and completing mission objectives, but now you can head down to the ground and convert your spaceship to a mech. And their alternate paths with different challenges so you can replay missions.

Getting to grips with the way that Star Fox Zero plays is a bit of a challenge, but once you work out how to shoot and fly at the same time, it becomes incredibly good fun. On your TV screen, you fly your spacecraft through the world, doing rolls and flips and avoiding fire. However, the screen on the GamePad shows off your cockpit view, and it is from here that you can aim and fire by moving the whole controller. So you kind of need to do both at once; it does take a little getting used to. There is a two-player mode, however, where one person flies and the other shoots, which is a great addition. Switching between aerial combat and ground-based fighting is a cinch, and there are different types of vehicles to use on the ground depending on the ship you are in. The visuals are fantastic and some of the battle scenes have so much action going on that your eyes may pop out of your head in disbelief.

DID YOU KNOW?

The first Star Fox game came out in 1993 on the SNES.

The different settings, including snow planets, forest planets and space also keep things varied. Finally there is, of course, the great cast of characters as the whole of Team Fox - Fox McCloud, Falco Lombardi, Peppy Hare and Slippy Toad - feature in the game. There are cutscenes that help tell the story, and you can see them from different views depending on if you look at your TV or the GamePad screen - a pretty neat idea. If you're into Star Wars and looking for a furious action game to get stuck into, then Fox is your man!

TRON/R

PC, PS4, XBO

Based on the movie series called TRON, the "r" in the title stands for runner. That's because this game is an auto-runner, where the character is constantly moving forward and you can't stop, even if you wanted to – we see a lot of these types of game on mobile and tablets. Being on console, however, it looks really amazing. You're inside a computer and running away from nasty programs, so the dazzling electronic world is pretty special. The action moves at a fast pace, but you have plenty of tricks up your sleeve as you're able to wall run, slide and glide, plus there is a mode where you can jump on bike where you can drift and do tricks. You need to aim for certain points in the world, collect goodies and dodge obstacles in order to survive and earn the most points. One mode has endless randomly generated levels, too, so you can keep playing well after you have finished the main stages.

STAR FOX GUARD

WII U

If you are wondering why we have not mentioned this game before it is because we only just found out about it. This is a companion game to Star Fox Zero, which is releasing at the same time, but as a downloadable title in the eShop. It's a tower defence game, where you need to stop enemies from successfully invading Grippy Toad's (Slippy Toad's uncle) mining facilities. You set up 12 cameras around each of the 100 levels, trying to catch the invaders unaware so you can blast them and defend the base. It works well thanks to the touchscreen on the GamePad, which lets you move the cameras around the maps easily to plot your strategy. Plus looking at all 12 cameras at once and managing where they are looking is very addictive. What's particularly cool is that after you finish the game you can design your own mining facility and enemy placements to challenge your friends online or at home.

GAMESTA VERDICT: SOMEONE IS WATCHING

FRESH PICS

The coming virtual reality revolution is good and all, but it will be nothing if there aren't any good games to play. Here are some to keep an eye on.

MONSTER HUNTER GENERATIONS (3DS)

The most popular action-RPG on the 3DS is making a return this winter. While it will retain the same great mix of exploration and challenging combat against huge beasts, this will be the most customisable game in the series yet offering a new Style system and Hunter Arts. For the first time you will also be able to play as Felyne, and use a special new armour set that is based on the Fire Emblem series. As you can see from this screenshot, the gameplay still looks like amazing fun.

LEGO STAR WARS: THE FORCE AWAKENS (ALL FORMATS)

It's not a big surprise, but we're still very excited by the news that Lego Star Wars: The Force Awakens has been announced and will be with us in June. There are some very cool new additions to the gameplay, including cover-based blaster battles and the ability for you to build multiple things from the same collection of pieces in the game, each opening up new paths to explore. The coolest news, however, is that the game's story will not just follow the movie, but also events we didn't see in the period before it starts.

FORZA MOTORSPORT 6: APEX (PC)

The best racing game series in the world is getting a spin-off title for the PC. It will be based on the fantastic Forza Motorsport 6, but will be a slimmed-down version of the game that is free-to-play. It will come with 12 themed racing events, 60 cars and a new objectives system – you will be able to unlock extra cars by racing well, or you can buy them with real money. The Drivatar system that records the way you drive and then uses it to make the AI better will be included, too.

TIGER

Go behind-the-scenes of spending each day alongside a group of tigers with this special insight from Dreamworld's Tiger Island
Supervisor, Simon Murray.

KRASH: What was your first job working with animals?

SIMON: I was raised on a farm in country Victoria, so unofficially helping on the farm. But, believe it or not, my job with the tigers is my first job working with animals.

KRASH: What was involved in your journey to becoming a Tiger Cub Handler?

SIMON: I was working at Dreamworld as a Ride Supervisor and became aware of an exciting new attraction that was being developed called Tiger Island and knew I had to be part of it. I went through numerous interviews and was chosen to start on a three month trial. I've now been working with the tigers for over 20 years and am currently the Supervisor of Tiger Island.

KRASH: Did you have to do any specific study or training?

SIMON: In 1996, I was part of the very first group of students in Queensland to study the 'Certificate III in Zookeeping' at T.A.F.E. After three years of part-time study, we all graduated and it is now a recognised pre-requisite for most entry level jobs in Zookeeping across Australia. Dreamworld is also fantastic at giving staff opportunities to advance through extra training.

KRASH: What is the most challenging thing about your job?

SIMON: It can be challenging to have the confidence to stop the tigers from fighting. Tigers are solitary, but, are quite social when they are young. As they get older they stop being as friendly toward each other and start to be more aggressive, so it is up to us to stop them from fighting and hurting each other.

KRASH: What do you love the most about your job?

SIMON: The close interaction with the cats. Being able to form a bond with young tigers, seeing them grow into adults and still feeling safe around them because of the relationship that is formed over the years.

KRASH: How many tiger cubs do you look after?

SIMON: We currently have five cubs. Kai (six-month-old male), two four-month-old female cubs who have recently arrived from Japan, plus Adira and Akasha who are 12-week-old female sisters.

KRASH: What can visitors expect to see at a Tiger Island show at Dreamworld?

SIMON: A bit of fun while learning about tigers. We work with the tigers to show off natural behaviours and skills. Things like jumping, tree climbing, and balance behaviours like standing tall on their hind legs. We also encourage guests to donate some money to wild

FINISH THE SENTENCE WITH SIMON:

Three words that describe my job are... Amazing, unique, fun.

In my spare time, I like to... Go to the gym, relax with my family and go bushwalking.

If I had a pet tiger I would name it... Roary (tigers do not make good pets).

Three things you need to handle tiger cubs are... Confidence, patience and good observation skills.

My most memorable career moment so far is... Spending five weeks in Japan helping raise two tiger cubs before they came to Australia.

The number of hours I spend with tiger cubs each day is... Around six hours per day.

CUB HANDLER

tiger conservation through the Dreamworld Wildlife Foundation.

KRASH: Besides Tiger Island, what is the best thing about Dreamworld?

SIMON: The variety. You can do the best thrill rides, or chill in the waterpark, or experience Australian animals and ancient culture all in the one theme park.

KRASH: How does a typical day roll out as a tiger cub handler?

SIMON: Starting at 7:30 in the morning, a couple of us take a big tiger out for a walk whilst other staff clean enclosures and prepare the big tigers' diets. Then it's time to take the cubs for a walk in Dreamworld, which helps them become accustomed with their environment. After the walk, the cubs meet with guests in a cub experience and then it's feeding time in the Tiger Island nursery. The cubs then go into their own enclosure so guests can see them, they have plenty of room to play and relax and a pool to splash in. We'll go for a walk with the cubs in the afternoon, then take them onto Tiger Island to be introduced to the big tigers.

KRASH: Can you tell us a bit about the Dreamworld Cub Club?

SIMON: The Cub Club is a way for everyone to connect with the tiger cubs at Dreamworld. You can see their progress and even get involved with helping to save their wild cousins.

KRASH: Do you have a favourite tiger at Dreamworld?

SIMON: They are all my favourites, but I have a soft spot for Kai because he is a cheeky, young tiger and has a very playful personality.

KRASH: Have you ever been bitten by a tiger?

SIMON: Yes, luckily nothing too serious. We can't expect to work as closely as we do with the tigers and not be injured from time to time. All the handlers work very hard to minimise the risks that we face by understanding the tigers different personalities and always being very observant.

KRASH: What and how much does a tiger cub eat each day?

SIMON: Depending on their age, a tiger cub will drink around 1000 millilitres of special formula and 200 grams of raw meat per day.

KRASH: How long does it take for a tiger to be fully grown?

SIMON: They reach their full size by about two-years-old, but, they are not considered adults until they are closer to four-years-old.

KRASH: Do you work with any other animals at Dreamworld?

SIMON: Yes, we have two beautiful female Mountain Lions called Inca and Sierra. They are 20-years-old now and are hand raised so we spend as much time with them as we can. Mountain Lions are the largest purring cats, so when we are relaxing with them they purr very loudly.

KRASH: What is the most interesting fact you have learnt about tigers?

SIMON: Rather than an interesting fact, a sad fact is that tigers in the wild are suffering because of the greed of humans. Poaching and habitat destruction have caused massive losses to wild tiger numbers. The threat of extinction is very real.

KRASH: Do you have any pets at home?

SIMON: A black Cocker Spaniel called Pepe, and a Cockatiel called Aussie.

KRASH: What is the most valuable piece of advice you've ever been given?

SIMON: Learn from your mistakes.

PRANK'D

Terrorise your friends and family with our list of classic pranks.

THE PRANK: THE MAD HATTER

TOOL KIT

- ☐ Five novelty hats.

THE SET UP: Get crafty and make a bunch of hats – all the same colour but each one slightly bigger than the last. Next time you head to a friend's birthday party or sleepover, secretly take all five hats with you in your backpack. Arrive wearing the normal-sized hat, then throughout the day keep switching to the bigger sized hat until you're finally wearing the largest one. How long will it take your buds to notice your crazy headwear?

THE PUNISHMENT: The joke's on you this time, so there's no punishment to worry about. But your buds will be keen to out-do you with their own prank.

LAUGH METER

THE PRANK: NAIL POLISH SPILL

TOOL KIT

- ☐ A bottle of nail polish and some wax paper.

THE SET UP: Lay out a big sheet of wax paper and carefully pour some nail polish in the centre. Let it dry overnight, then peel the wax paper away from the dried nail polish. Place the dried nail polish in an obvious place on the lounge and put the empty nail polish bottle on its side next to it so it looks like a spill.

Get in a good hiding place and wait for your mum or dad to come in and freak out!

THE PUNISHMENT: The dried nail polish won't mark the lounge, so once your parents realise there's no harm done they should see the funny side. Although you might get busted if you swiped your mum's nail polish.

LAUGH METER

THE PRANK: SPIDER FREAK OUT

THE SET UP: Make sure your fake spider looks as real as possible and put it inside a clear plastic container. Loosen the lid on the container, and when your family is sitting around watching TV, run into the room screaming about a spider that just tried to attack you. Toss the container into the middle of the room so that the lid comes off when it hits the ground, and watch everyone run!

THE PUNISHMENT: If anyone in your family has a spider phobia you could be in for a grounding. But hopefully with no harm done they'll see the funny side.

TOOL KIT

- ☐ A fake spider and a clear plastic container.

LAUGH METER

THE PRANK: COOKIE MONSTER

THE SET UP: Ask your mum or dad or help you bake some cookies. Follow the instructions on the cookie dough, but add a bunch of salt to the mixture before you put it into the oven. Take the cookies to school the next day to share with your buds, but instead of biting into a sweet, choc-chip treat, they'll get a mouthful of gross, salty cookie!

THE PUNISHMENT: Get ready to run because your grossed out mates are going to be mad. And watch out for their revenge prank. It won't be pretty.

TOOL KIT

- ☐ Cookie dough and salt.

LAUGH METER

THE PRANK: COFFEE PIG

THE SET UP: When nobody is watching, swipe your mum or dad's favourite coffee mug. Find a photo of a pig's snout on the internet and print it out. Cut it out and use Blu-Tac to stick it onto the bottom of the coffee mug. Put the mug back in the cupboard where you found it. Next time your mum or dad drinks from the mug, they'll give the whole family a good laugh when they raise the cup to their mouth and reveal the pig's snout!

THE PUNISHMENT: No harm, no foul. But expect your victim to want sweet revenge with a prank of their own.

TOOL KIT

- ☐ A picture of a pig's snout, some scissors and Blu-Tac.

LAUGH METER

Freak Out

RANDOM RESTAURANTS

If you've never eaten in the dark, mid-air or from a toilet bowl, it's about time you get your food freak on.

MAGIC RESTROOM CAFE, LOS ANGELES

The idea of sitting on a toilet in public is the stuff of nightmares but that hasn't stopped the Magic Restroom making loos the focus of its themed restaurant in L.A. With toilets as seats and food served in miniature toilet bowls, it's revolting and disturbing in equal measure.

NINJA, TAIWAN

Taiwan has a liking for themed freakiness when it comes to eating out, with the food rarely being the main drawcard. Take Ninja, for example, where the wait staff are dressed as ninjas and crawl on the ceiling and up the walls for diners' entertainment.

TWIN STARS DINER, MOSCOW

At the Twin Stars diner in Moscow, all the staff – from waiters to bartenders and even the chefs – are identically dressed twins. The owner based the idea on his favourite childhood movie, Kingdom of Crooked Mirrors, about a girl who discovers her twin through a mirror.

FORTEZZA MEDICEA RESTAURANT, ITALY

If you've ever wondered what it's like to be a prisoner, you might enjoy eating at Fortezza Medicea. The restaurant is actually set in a prison and the waitstaff are real inmates. Just be grateful it's plastic cutlery only.

DINNER IN THE SKY, BELGIUM

Not everyone can stomach eating a meal while dangling 45 metres above the ground from a crane, even if you're not usually afraid of heights. But at Dinner in the Sky in Belgium, that's exactly what you'll be served. Yep, diners are strapped into chairs, raised into the air and served meals that are cooked in a small oven in the centre of the structure. Let's hope they hand out sick bags.

DISASTER CAFE, SPAIN

Normally, people are terrified of earthquakes, but at the Disaster

Café, people actually pay to experience a simulated 7.8 quake while they dine. All you can do is try to keep your balance and hope the drinks don't get spilled.

O.NOIR, CANADA

Imagine being led into a pitch-black dining room and served food you can't see. Well, when you dine at O.Noir in Toronto, where the motto is 'it's better in the dark', that's what you'll experience. Your waiter will explain where everything is on the table then it's up to you to feel your way through.

ICE RESTAURANT IN DUBAI

Almost everything at the Ice Restaurant is sculpted out of, you guessed it, ice. Diners sit on ice benches or chairs and eat at ice tables off ice plates. You even drink from ice glasses served from a bar made of... ice.

BOARD FLIP

Doing a Board Flip is probably the easiest trick in the book, pretty much anyone can do it!

STEP 1:

To be on the safe side put your board on the carpet or grass so the board doesn't roll from under your feet, you can really hurt yourself quite bad. Place your board next to a fence where you can hold to or even have a friend hold your hands. Place the board in front of your feet close.

STEP 2:

Place your front foot where the bolts are and sweep your foot back to make the board flip over.

STEP 3:

Make sure the board flips onto both feet.

THIS IS THE BASICS. LOTS AND LOTS OF PRACTICE. THE FASTER YOU CAN PUSH THE FURTHER YOU'LL TRAVEL AND THE MORE FUN IT IS.

STEP 4:

Bend your knees before you jump and jump 1 foot in front of you so you land on your board.

STEP 5:

Really important to land with your feet shoulder width apart on your board and bend your knees when you land.

CONGRATULATIONS! YOU'RE DOING A COOL LOOKING TRICK.

SHAME OF THE MONTH

Last week I was at the tennis match, waiting for a court to open up so I could play when I saw the strangest thing... It looked like there was rain coming out of a bend in the branch of a tree. All of this water is going everywhere, and I point it out to some of my friends. I can't figure out what it is, so I walk over to it and put my hand under it. That's when one of my friends pointed out the possum peeing all over the place. IT WAS SO EMBARRASSING!!!

On the last day of school in the afternoon I was riding home with my best friend and his sister. We were turning around the corner when I slipped off my scooter and landed in dog poo. When we got back to school after the holidays everyone was laughing at me since my friend told everyone at school about what happened. And they all called me doggy doo doo! The shame! Paul.

Me and my friend were going around town after we had a swim when we went silly and started running around on those pony sticks and wearing fake beards. Then a girl from school saw us and we didn't realise so we kept spraying silly string and then when we saw her we screamed like girls and ran home. She told everyone! Gabriel

At school today I went into another class to read some stories that our class wrote. While I was reading my story I dropped a whopper and trust me now it smelt like a rotten egg. So we all cracked up laughing! Davis

It was at our school swimming carnival. Me and my friends were doing 25m butterfly and I was winning. Then all of a sudden the laces on my boardies came undone and my pants slipped right off!!! Later on my friends came up to me and told me that the girl I liked saw the whole thing. MAJOR EMBARRASSMENT!!! Matthew

When I was about 8 and my sister was 6 we were at my grandma's house and I told my sister to moon our uncle who was there too. She was too young to know not to do it and so she pulled down here pants!!! My uncle reeled back in shock and there were heaps of people around!! I could not believe my eyes and denied everything. Thomas
